The Project

A slightly unusual new build property in that all of the main external building material is cast stone, as per client requests.

The Results

This was a very significant project for us and both for the complexity of the design of the building and the sheer quantity of cast stone units. We consider the finished result to be imposing and unique.

Client Quote

“This was a very large project with a lot of cast stone units. The units were labelled and we had a corresponding drawing to show the unit locations. All of the staff at Procter were very helpful and we are very happy with the quality of the product.”
